According to police reports, Tamara Big Medicine was reported missing Dec. 11 by her mother Susan Willie, who said her daughter was last seen at her residence around 9 pm on Nov. 25.

Willie said Big Medicine just left her home and never told anyone where she was going. She said she didn't recall what she was wearing, but she has a rose tattoo with a music symbol on her right hand and three scars on her stomach due to gallstone surgery.

She added that her daughter has used meth in the past and suffers from post traumatic stress disorder and anxiety. She added that Big Medicine might have short hair or have a completely shaved head.

Willie spoke with Sheriff's Investigator Joey Guillen Dec. 18. She told him she had received a message saying her daughter was seen around the DCI Plasma Center. But when Guillen went to the location and met with a supervisor there, he was told the supervisor had not seen Big Medicine.

Anyone with information is being asked to contact the McKinley County Sheriff's Office or the Navajo police. Investigator Joey Guillen can be reached through the sheriff's office at (505) 863-1410.
