None located in McKinley County

SANTA FE - New Mexico state health officials announced additional positive tests for COVID-19 on March 19.

Per the state Department of Health, some of the most recent cases are:

A woman in Bernalillo County in her 80s;

A woman in Bernalillo County in her 40s; the state Department of Health is investigating community spread in this case as this individual had no known exposure;

A woman in Santa Fe County in her 30s;

A woman in Sandoval County in her teens;

A woman in Sandoval County in her 50s.

Including the above newly reported cases, New Mexico has now had a total of 35 positive tests for COVID-19. They are located in:

Bernalillo County: 20

Sandoval County: 4

San Miguel County: 1

Santa Fe County: 7

Socorro County: 2

Taos County: 1

The New Mexico Department of Health has active investigations into each of the positive patients, which includes contact-tracing and swabs of symptomatic individuals who have had contact with the positive cases.

State officials have vigorously encouraged all New Mexicans to practice social distancing procedures: stay home, particularly if you are sick.

Every New Mexican must work to stem the spread of COVID-19.

New Mexicans who report symptoms of COVID-19 infection, such as fever, cough, or shortness of breath, should call their health care provider or the NMDOH COVID-19 hotline immediately (855) 600-3453.

New Mexicans who have non-health-related questions or concerns can also call (833) 551-0518 or visit newmexico.gov, which is being updated and finalized as a one-stop source for information.

The state Department of Health will update its dedicated COVID-19 webpage with additional tests as the state lab provides results.

New Mexico Department of Health