

FBI investigating Navajo man's death; reward possible

Written by gallupsun
Friday, 12 March 2021 22:26

The FBI is investigating a suspected homicide in the death of a Navajo Nation man and offering a $5,000 reward to anyone who could lead investigators to the person or group that may be responsible.

According to an agency news release, 53-year-old David Russell, Jr., was found dead on Jan. 5 of blunt force trauma to the head at his residence just south of Chapter House in Nenahnezad, N.M., on the Navajo Nation.

The Navajo Nation Division of Public Safety joined the FBI in its investigation.

Tips on the case can be called into (505) 889-1300 or sent online to tips. fbi.gov .