Edgar Shirley

Nov. 30, 2020, 7:45 pm

DWI (Second)

On his way to Del Taco, Edgar Shirley, 58, was pulled over for turning from the wrong lane without using a turn signal. McKinley County Sheriff's Deputy Terence Willie approached the driver and told him the reason for the stop and Shirley told him they were just hungry, according to sheriff's reports. Shirley then told Willie that he had no license, insurance, or registration.

Willie saw an open can of Keystone in the cup holder and noticed Shirley had watery eyes and smelled of alcohol. He asked Shirley to step out of the vehicle.

"I can't, I have a wheelchair," Shirley told Willie. "I had my leg amputated."

Shirley admitted that he had a beer around 7 pm and agreed to perform alternative field sobriety tests. Shirley was arrested and a handgun was found in the truck. He was booked for his second DWI, open container and driving with a suspended license.

Workers at the McDonald's called police after a customer fell asleep in the drive-thru line. When Gallup Police Officer J. Benally arrived, he saw a white truck pulling out of the parking lot and employees waved him down and pointed at the truck. After pulling the truck over, Benally said he approached the vehicle, according to police reports, and found the windows too dark to see into the backseat. He knocked on the front window, but there was no one in the front seat.

Opening the door, Benally found a man, Alexander Skeets, 22 of Rehoboth, sitting in the rear passenger seat. Skeets told Benally that the driver had run away, but Benally did not believe him.

Skeets agreed to perform the field sobriety tests, but after three tests, he was placed in handcuffs and taken to the police station. There, he gave breath samples of .20 and .22 before he was booked for his second DWI and driving with a suspended license.
