

Gallup High honors 2011 girls b-ball team

Written by Story and photos by Shepherd Waldenberger Sun Correspondent
Friday, 12 February 2016 03:16

before the 2011 team strolled onto the court. Before announcing Prairie Chief's Hall of Fame honor, Coach Turner had another surprise. He pulled out a stack of newspapers he had saved from March 2011 when the girls won the State Championship.

"These papers are as old and crusty as you are," he said to the girls before handing them out. Coach and former players shared hugs and laughs as the ceremony wrapped up and halftime came to an end.

Gallup High defeated Miyamura by a landslide, but it was honoring an old school hero that really got the fans on their feet. Prairie Chief came to Gallup High the same year Coach Turner became the girls' team coach, so they were integral to each others success.

In her senior year at Gallup, she was NM Preps Player of the Year, Gatorade Player of the Year, and a Miss Basketball All American. Prairie Chief went on to play college basketball at Cochise College and Central Missouri State, graduating from the latter in 2015.