

ALBUQUERQUE—The New Mexico Lobos are traveling for their first road game of the season, taking on the Arizona State Sun Devils at 7 pm, Arizona Time, Sept. 18, at Sun Devil Stadium. The Lobos are 1-1 on the season, same as Arizona State. UNM is looking to avenge a 58-23 loss to the Sun Devils that was closer than the final would indicate. Below are all the important links to let you enjoy the game, whether you are coming to the stadium, or watching the game elsewhere.

BUYING TICKETS & COMING TO THE GAME

Information on purchasing tickets can be found at www.unmtickets.com for the road game.

HOW TO WATCH: The game vs. Arizona State is being broadcast nationally on the Pac-12 Network. It is available on Comcast channel 284 and DISH Network 409. If you have a provider that has access to the channel, you can watch a stream via pac12network.com using your login and password for your satellite provider.

The Live Stats link is coming up shortly.

HOW TO LISTEN

The game will be on the Lobo Radio Network, via Learfield, flagshipped at 770.

The game is also available for free through GoLobos.com turn right or via the TuneIn Radio

App.

VISIT: www.golobos.com